

Closing Scenes Relegate "Murder Trial of Century" to History

REPATRIATES.

A GO-GETTER. Samuel R. Rosoff (above) has just been awarded a $4,000,000 subway building contract from the city. He came here from Russia thirty years ago and started his career selling newspapers on Park Row. (Graphic.)

WEIGHING IN. Little Thomas Lunn (on scale) of 76 East 220th St. competed in health contest of Crawford Memorial Clinic at Moose Hall, East 216th Street. Dr. Ralph W. Keeler, church editor of The GRAPHIC and pastor of Crawford Memorial Church, looks on while nurse weighs the husky youngster. (Graphic.)

OLD-FASHIONED? Mrs. George Robins (above) doesn't think she is, so she's bringing a $50,000 damage suit against the General Baking Company for picturing her in billboard posters as the old-fashioned girl who still bakes bread instead of buying it ready made. (Photo Graphic.)
